

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Sayantan Bhattacharya grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

☒ I choose (circle one):

- ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
- b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzingbriggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

Sayantan Bhattacharya Signature 04/17/25 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, (201: 4/21/2025), grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzing_briggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

Dr.ief Signature 17th April, 2025 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Mayor Inna Gurny grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

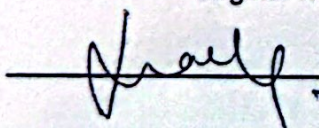

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tjbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzing_briggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Signature _____ Date 17th April 2025

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Emmanuel Addai, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- ☒ Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
 - Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
 - Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
 - If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
 - To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
 - Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

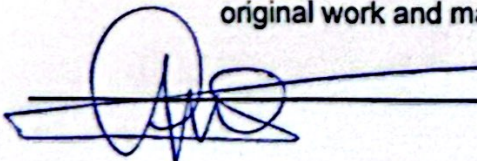

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- ☒ I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tjbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzing_briggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Signature 04/17/2025 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Shadi Shajeri, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

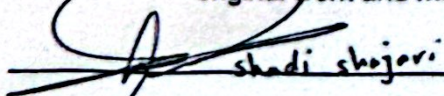

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tibriggs@ualr.edu and tenzingbriggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Shadi Shajeri Signature 04/19/25 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Mert Can Cakmak, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

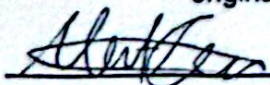

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tjbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzingbriggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Signature 4/17/25 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, T. Christopher Falade, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

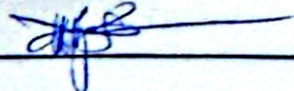

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tibriggs@ualr.edu and tenzing_briggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Signature 17/04/25 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Diwash Poudel, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - ☒ a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tibriggs@ualr.edu and tenzingbriggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Signature 04/17/2025 Date

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Selimon Dargtas, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - ☒ b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

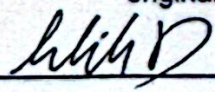

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tjbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzingbriggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

 Signature Apr 17 Date
2025

Consent for Publication of Edited Work

I, Kidwan Amure, grant permission to Tenzing Briggs to publish excerpts of my previously unpublished work that he has edited, for the purpose of showcasing his editorial skills in his final project of ePortfolio, which will be published online at tenzingbriggs.com. I understand that this ePortfolio may be publicly accessible and used to demonstrate his work to potential employers.

I understand that my work will be used under the following conditions:

1. Limited Use

- Tenzing Briggs will not publish the entirety of my work—only paragraphs or sections that demonstrate significant editorial changes.
- Any excerpts selected will not exceed 10% of a single paper.
- Example excerpts taken from papers will not be greater than 3 continuous sentences.
- If a single paper has multiple excerpts taken, they will be reordered and be taken from different sections, to avoid any possible plagiarism.
- To further avoid plagiarism, no excerpts will ever be taken from Methodology sections.
- Prior to publication, he will share the specific excerpts he intends to use and seek explicit approval for each instance.

2. Anonymity and Attribution

- I choose (circle one):
 - a) To have my name and paper title displayed, or
 - ☒ b) To remain anonymous, with all identifying details removed.

In either case, Tenzing Briggs will not claim authorship of my original work—only the editorial contributions he has made.

3. Withdrawal of Consent

- I may request the removal of my work at any time by providing written notice through any of Tenzing Briggs's emails (tjbriggs@ualr.edu and tenzingbriggs@gmail.com) or verbal notice through phone call (617-991-7624).
- I understand that without a withdrawal of consent, Tenzing Briggs may keep this work published for as long as the ePortfolio remains publicly available.
- Tenzing Briggs will remove my work within 30 days of receiving my request. However, I acknowledge that some traces (such as cached pages) may remain beyond his control.

4. Copyright and Ownership

- This consent does not transfer copyright ownership. I retain full rights to my original work and may publish or use it elsewhere as I see fit.

Signature 04/17/25 Date